Event Narrative

Claude Masse-Daigle has been painting since 1958 and focuses his talent on rustic scenes, monuments and marine scenes, all three important in what was the Poitou region of France (located in west-central France). His presentation and exhibit will, explain the plight of the Acadians who were forced out of their homes in Nova Scotia and how some of these people took refuge in the Poitou region. This event promises to enlighten its attendees about the history of the Acadians and the hardships they braved and survived. His exhibit will be combined with local artists.

Christian M. Goudeau will be translating the presentation into English.
